AGUA CALIENTE GHOST TOWN: GAMING DEAD

By CHARLES MOORE
United Press

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex. Aug. 3.—A year after its sudden close last summer, Agua Caliente, formerly one of the smartest watering places in North America, remains empty and deserted with hope for a reopening becoming dimmer month by month.

Since President Lázaro Cardenas of Mexico issued a stunning notice July 20, 1935, that no more gambling was to be allowed in Mexico, owners of the fashionable resort have from time to time been heard by reports that they would be able to reopen, but each has proved false.

The buildings themselves remain in good condition, and could be leased for operation in a few weeks. The owners of the fashionable resort have from time to time been heard by reports that they would be able to reopen, but each has proved false.

REV. CONNELL EXPULSED BY C.C.F. PARTY

Executive Claims Party
Leader Put Himself Outside Organization

VANCOUVER, Aug. 2.—The executive of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, British Columbia section, Saturday issued a statement that Rev. Robert Connell, party leader in the legislative assembly, had placed himself outside the C.C.F. If Mr. Connell required a formal procedure of expulsion the executive would grant him that formality, the statement said.

REFUTATED PLATFORM

The executive statement, which followed a meeting Saturday afternoon, said Mr. Connell had placed himself outside the C.C.F. by his statements to the press and the executive. Under the constitution a member of the C.C.F. must subscribe to the platform and manifesto of the movement. On Thursday the House leader had repudiated the platform adopted at a recent convention.

Jack Price, M.L.A., Vancouver East, party whip, who Saturday issued a statement in support of Mr. Connell, was temporarily suspended and notified to appear before the executive and show cause why he should not be expelled.

OFFERED TO RESIGN

Dr. Lyle Telford, president of the C.C.F. B.C. section, offered to resign, the statement said, in order to keep any personal issue out of the question, but his resignation was unanimously rejected.

Peace Within C.C.F. Ranks

TORONTO, Aug. 2.—The insurgent group in the Ontario section of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation who were expelled from the party last May 9 for participation in the May Day rally were reinstated by the provincial council here last night.

Time brought back into the fold in time for the national convention of the C.C.F. which opens here tomorrow were Rev. Ben Spencer, Mrs. Jean Laing, J. M. Connor, Rev. Arthur Williams of East York, 1,500 members of the East York Workers' Association, Independent Labor party and the C.C.F. councils of St. Paul, Earlscourt, Lakeland, New Don and Bedford Park.

With the question of unity within the Labor movement overshadowing other issues the national convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation opened here today. It will continue Tuesday and Wednesday.

Bank Chiefs Now Envy Her Movie Salary

She's nearly 16 and for more than 14 years she's been a trouper in circuses and theatres.

Now her salary in Hollywood would be the envy of any bank president.

This newcomer to the movies is Olympic Bradna, 15-year-old acrobatic dancer, whose beautiful body and lovely face promise to make her a full-fledged star within the next year.

Flying somersaults, back flips, walkovers and backbends come as naturally to Olympic as walking does to most people. She does them all without apparent effort.

Only 18 months later she was a regular member of "The Bradna Family," with her father and mother. It was an equine stunt act and if fate had not intervened, Olympic would have grown up to be a bareback rider.

Hard times saved Olympic from circus life. The family had to sell its horses because there was not enough money to pay the feed bills. But Olympic's theatrical talent was not allowed to go undeveloped. Before she was 14 she had become a full-fledged star of the French Casino.

When she was brought to New York—the columnist all gave her "rave" after seeing her perform her acrobatic dances. Walter Winchell said—more charm and appeal than Myrna Loy.

A Paramount studio talent scout saw her just once and wanted to sign her for life for pictures.

So far so many things have happened the little Olympic hardly knows what to make of America. She has learned to speak English, but of course there's still a French accent that she can't shake.

Olympic still has a child's outlook on life and would be a real tomboy if her parents and studio permit. She is so perfectly developed musically, due to her acrobatic training, that she can beat boys of her own age at most games.

Just now Claudette Colbert is her ideal and she hopes she will be as great an actress as Claudette some day.

Truly "The Amateur Gentleman" is a story of the days when knighthood was in flower, packed with action, the story tells of the adventures of Barnabas Remy, an intrepid explorer, who through a series of incidents that not only thrill, but cause the pulses to beat with abnormal frequency, Barnabas Remy is a care-free son of a hard-working man and in the course of his gripping series of adventures, clears his father's name of a stigma that had become attached to it.

One of the highlights of the picture is a real old-time bar-knuckle fight, which shows young Fairbanks as a professional boxer going at one another "hammer and tongs" at least with sufficient fidelity that Fairbanks, subsequent to the pictorial battle, was forced to spend a period of recuperation to go to infirmary. Saturday at the Capitol theatre Shirley Temple came to town in a comforted, laugh-laden story away the greatest film she has ever had.

Before a packed audience of the little stars' admirers, "The Poor Little Rich Girl" flared away in a blaze of melody, laughter and the romance and the strong delight with the knowledge that Shirley had topped even the greatest of her past hits.

Here is Shirley in all her glory in a comforted, laugh-laden story that is one of the crowning cinematic achievements of this or any other year.

The Poor Little Rich Girl—Shirley here!—upon in the paternal mansion of Michael Whalen, father of the little miss. Shirley has no mother but her father has provided a veritable regiment of adobe-camp whose sole duties are to look after her.

If Shirley dares to sneeze—off the must go to bed while a doctor is called to prescribe for her alarming cold. Shirley, as you can imagine, is none too pleased with this state of affairs and persuades her father to send her to boarding school.

While waiting for the train, Shirley slips away from her nurse, Sara Haden, and wanders along the street playing a game of make-believe. Miss Haden, in the meantime, is the victim of an accident, and during the following days of Shirley seeks adventure, the little girl is not mislead by her father's touching—of events finally culminates in Shirley being adopted by a pair of sapient radio entertainers, Alice Faye and Jack Haley. Miss Faye realizes that Shirley is not "orphan" as she has told them, but Haley recognizes Shirley's talents as just what the act needs.

RIALTO
Glamour, romance, adventure, action—all these abound in the film adaptation of Jeffery Farnow's internationally successful story "The Amateur Gentleman," which opens a week's engagement at the Rialto theatre, commencing today.

Starring in the picture are Elissa Landi, beautiful Venetian-born actress, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who has the greatest role of his career.

Truly "The Amateur Gentleman" is a story of the days when knighthood was in flower, packed with action, the story tells of the adventures of Barnabas Remy, an intrepid explorer, who through a series of incidents that not only thrill, but cause the pulses to beat with abnormal frequency, Barnabas Remy is a care-free son of a hard-working man and in the course of his gripping series of adventures, clears his father's name of a stigma that had become attached to it.

One of the highlights of the picture is a real old-time bar-knuckle fight, which shows young Fairbanks as a professional boxer going at one another "hammer and tongs" at least with sufficient fidelity that Fairbanks, subsequent to the pictorial battle, was forced to spend a period of recuperation to go to infirmary. In addition to Fairbanks and the lovely Miss Landi, the cast includes such stars as Hugh Williams, Gordon Harker and Basil Sydney.

Playing with this outstanding 100% show is Graham MacNamee in the Universal News of the Week.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings ladies may have their choice of Beatrice O'Spring dinnerware on hand.

STRAND
It's a curious twist of the Fates that they sometimes meet in the same colorful strange mixtures. The three ladies went away out of their way to bring together the cast of "Bullets or Ballots," the equally divided.

requiring ability, energy, knowledge, experience and integrity. Mr. Aberhart has indicated lately he knows he can distribute only small individual shares or basic dividends from a total annual mutual production or income, even though he formerly claimed liberalities.

"That an educator—a what a promoter!"

The proposed Social Credit scheme can mean only this: We, the government, intend to take or confiscate from all individuals in Alberta their own or produce or give or present to those individuals only who are recognized by us as bona fide residents of Alberta (whether or not they own or produce anything of value in whatever quantities we, the government, decide).

In plainer language: We, the government, are going to tax all people who have any income from whatever source, but we are not going to let all share in the redistribution of these taxations, even though we may have extracted or confiscated a very large portion of the total amount from very many when we exclude from the beneficiaries of the so-called basic dividends recommended by so many supposedly Christian leaders and teachers. I am not registering or rubber stamping my name to what I honestly consider a most striking example of ignorance, biased, intolerant and non-Christian, and emotional insult to human intelligence.

It would be signing away our right to any reasonable democratic rights I might have with practically nothing in return. It is my honest opinion, of the greatest detriment to the nation, based upon thorough study and investigation of the entire Aberhart movement's program, that it is a cheap dishonest bid to obtain people's allegiance so that we will remain in each other and our future for enjoying its benefits, and for indulging in senseless experiments.

We must have only honest, but capable and experienced men in our government.

As proposed by Major Douglas, it is as yet an untried theory of distribution of mainly manufactured articles, of which we so far have only been able to produce a few, and which we have been able to manufacture very few here in Alberta, notwithstanding the claims of many persons totally ignorant of real facts and lacking in sound judgment.

Since that time the Compensation Board put me on a pension of $271 per month during the rest of my life. The Medical Board decided that I had a disability equal to 25 per cent for loss of my right foot. When I demanded that they should pay me for damage on this basis, namely, $1200 per month, instead they pay me $271 per month, which, according to the tables in use, is only 7% per cent disability.

NEW DEAL IS AGAIN RAPPEL BY COUGHLIN

Fiery Detroit Priest Continues Attack on President Roosevelt

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 3.—Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, discussing the administration of President Roosevelt, declared last night:

"As I was instrumental in removing Herbert Hoover from the White House, so help me God, I will be instrumental in taking a Communist from the chair once occupied by Washington."

ESTIMATED 12,000

His statement, made to a rally which he estimated included more than 12,000 persons here last night, followed an address before a throng. Father Coughlin said contained 25,000 persons at Providence, R.I.

In his afternoon address at Providence he pointed to the New Deal as "surrounded by its Albatross, surrounded by its red and black Communists and by Frankfurters of destruction."

"If Herbert Hoover had been rejected," he said, "there would have been more bullet holes in the White House than you could count with an adding machine."

ONLY STIMMED REVOLT

"But Roosevelt only stimulated the revolution. It is coming as surely as God is in Heaven unless the money changers are driven from the temple. And the national union is going to drive the servants of the money changers out of the temple and those who keep them there—the politicians."

The Compensation Board increased my pension from $271 to $538 per month, but by the Compensation Act I should get a pension of at least $820 per month, although by the medical board percentage it would come to $1320 per month. Since March 15, 1933 I have been fighting my compensation case, but I am still in the same position.

LOOKING THEM OVER

By JACK KELLY

Northern League Asked to Enter Team in North American Title Series

Possibilities developed over the weekend that a team from the Northern Alberta League would figure in the semi-professional series with a United States squad for the international semi-professional championship of North America. The scene of the proposed two out of three game series is Wichita, Kansas, and tentative plans are for the Alberta team going there.

Proposals for such an international series come from Raymond Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress. Under the auspices of this organization 32 teams from all parts of the United States will compete at Wichita in a tourney for the national championship. This title-winning team would then meet one of the four clubs from the Northern Baseball League for the North American championship.

Dumont made these proposals to John Ducey by wire over the week-end. So far they have not been presented to the Northern League as a body, and in all probability will be dealt with by each club as individuals.

This semi-pro playoff has been planned on an elaborate scale in the United States this season and appears to have drawn the cream of baseball talent out of leagues in organized ball. Sectional tourneys are staged and the winners of these advance into a state tourney. The state champions then go to Wichita for the national title tourney.

The Money Is the Thing

On the face of it, the proposition appears to be interesting enough to merit the consideration of all four clubs in the Northern League, but the crux of the matter is the question of financing a hunt down into Kansas with such a sizeable distance. A tentative guarantee has been suggested by Promoter Dumont, but it is only about one-third of the amount required.

Another problem is that of dates. The U. S. national title tourney starts on Aug. 14 and the champions are to be declared on August 26. Dumont proposes that the Alberta entrants be in Wichita for the first of the international series on August 25. With the Northern League play-off, four out of seven games, billed to start about August 20, it does not appear possible for a team to reach Kansas on the date stipulated.

The present suggestion is that a tourney be staged in Edmonton to select the team that will go into the international series. Unless Wichita can change the starting date, though, it will be impossible for either the first or second place teams to go. In that event, the two clubs left out of the league playoff might amalgamate and send a team over the border. This would probably work out satisfactorily, since the majority of players on all clubs have to go back to the southwestern States.

Plans have been talked of along the lines of forming one or two teams from among the returning players to stage a series of exhibition games as they work southward to their homes. There are a number of players here who have their own cars that will solve the transportation problem. The Wichita series will be in nicely with such a plan. In addition to a cash guarantee, Dumont is prepared to give the Canadian champions a cut of something like 25 per cent of the gate on the series.

If an all-star team is picked from the Northern League, it would be a mighty serious contender against the U. S. champions. There is plenty of top-notch managerial ability on hand to head such a team and so many good ball players that it would be a pretty tough problem picking the best of them.

Flashy Ball Tonight

Another team of smart colored baseball stars that put on a real show along with their game, will be in action tonight at Bowfry Park at 6:15 p.m. when the Boston Royal Giants, fast-playing club from the Eastern Colored League, meet an all-star team from the Cardinals and Shastas under the management of Buck Egan.

These Boston Giants are reported to be every bit as good as the famous colored Giants who played here last week and if anything they are said to be faster and to put on a better show.

Tuesday night will bring a regular league battle between the Cardinals and Shastas, while on Wednesday the Shastas will go to Toronto with the Panthers coming back here on Thursday. Toronto, however, the Panthers will be playing in Calgary.

Local fans are requested to note that from now on all evening games will start at 6:15 instead of 6:30 in view of the shortening days.

HEARTS TAKE SURPRISE WIN OVER CALLIES

Defeat Fancied Opponents 2-0 In Dragon Cup Encounter

Hearts surprised the good number of soccer fans who witnessed the game Saturday night at Diagonal Park by taking their more fancied opponents, Callies into a surprise victory, 2-0.

Callies were away before their usual strength, a make-shift eleven taking the field.

From the start Hearts took up the running and the Scots defence went through a bad time trying to keep the Hearts forwards from scoring.

Callies went back to work in the forwards going but weakness in front of goal led to the victory.

Edmonton Mermaid

Clips 31 Seconds Off Previous Mark

In Half Mile Event—Also Wins Ladies' Mile. Max King and Cameron Steer Retain Respective Crowns

By JACK KELLY

Edmonton Bulletin Sports Editor

SYLVAN LAKE, Aug. 3.—Edmonton mermaids and mermen again made a clean sweep in the Wrigley swims here on Saturday afternoon, while Ruth Lett, swimming in the colors of the South Side Club, flashed through the rough white-caps to set a new Dominion record for the girls' half-mile by carving a full 31 seconds off the mark set by Betty Batchelor in an indoor pool at Toronto in 1935. In addition to the feat, Miss Lett captured the ladies' mile and the 50-yard backstroke. This was Miss Lett's third consecutive win in the half-mile.

Max King of Edmonton won the second mile for the classic men's mile for the fourth time when he staved off a determined bid by Norman Allan and reached the finish in a scant five feet ahead of his fellow Edmontonian. It was by long odds the most stirring finish of the day and one of the greatest ever seen here in this Wrigley event. At the half-mile turning point, King was leading by not more than two strokes and was able to hold off Allan.

TOUGH BREAK

The big Sylvan Lake regatta got a tough break in the weather. Early in the afternoon a break wind whipped the lake into white-caps and off and on during the remainder of the program the spectators were driven from the shore by erected bleachers by showers of driving rain.

This adverse weather and the fact that Miss Lett is still of junior age, however, did not prevent her from setting a new record in the 50-yard backstroke. She was caught however by three other swimmers with an average time of 13 minutes, 30 and one-fifth seconds as against the previous Canadian record of 14 minutes and 20 seconds set by Miss Lett in 1935.

Swims are sanctioned as championship events by the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association. Miss Lett's mark will undoubtedly receive formal recognition.

THIRD VICTORY

Thirteen competitors plunged into the water in the 100-yard half mile in which Cameron Steer of Edmonton registered his third victory. He was followed by a great battle all the way by Bob Wrigley, who was leading until the last 20 yards when he was overtaken by Steer.

In the ladies' mile, Ruth Lett finished with margin of about 20 yards over Betty King. The latter placed third. All three girls are from Edmonton.

Following the swims, the competitors and officials were guests of the Wrigley Company at a preliminary banquet in the Sylvan lake hotel. S. H. Wrigley, representing the Wrigley Company, presented the trophies with fitting tributes to the winners.

Following are the results:

RESORT HOTEL

Deck Morgan

BEHOLD HERE TODAY
ANN HANCOCK, pretty young
secretary in a large business office, is on her way to the resort for her two-week vacation.
MRS. WARE, travel business woman, persuades her to go to Lake Resort. It is a beautiful, attractive place, and she gives her the details.

When she is in the mountain and at first is lonely. Then she meets RAUL SPRING, head business man who lives across the lake at the Moulin. Flying high! They all know who Ann was, what she did
in the city, and what she is now.
She was wearing climbing boots.
The porch attendants took up their
positions and waited for something to happen. One or two genial old fellows dropped a smile or two in
their knitting when Jaime's long
sleeved came rustling around the
lake, to sit in a whiff of dirt before the Glenwood Inn.

Ann went down to meet him and
they drove away on the Cascade
road toward the Mayor trail. Jaime seemed changed. Ann thought—or
perhaps she imagined it—his hair
had a little more color this morning. Perhaps it was the result of the crisp mountain air.
They were content to say nothing,
to throw back their heads in the breeze.

"Is this a very steep mountain?"
Jaime asked.
"It's the highest in the Adiron-
dacks," she said firmly.
Jaime pretended to faint, and she
had to catch the wheel to keep
them from swerving off the road.
"You juveniles are just laughing."
"You perpetual clown."
He faced her. "Do you like me?"
"I'm afraid I do."

The climb they were attempting wasn't arduous. They were going
only part of the way up the mountain. At first the trail was no more than a leisurely uphill walk. At intervals Jaime stopped and pointed out flora beside the path. Once
they stopped to watch tiny birds
in the grass.

This experience was something
entirely new to him, and he thrilled
to it like a small boy. His face was flushed when they came to the
roaring cataract which emptied one
of the high mountain lakes into
the Indians Lake Tarn-in-the-Clouds.

He leapt out of the big bulldozer
in the very centre of the raging
food, and waited for her to follow. Ann jumped, and he caught her in his arms. They were both
laughing hilariously when they sat
down on the rock-island to catch
their wind.

It hadn't been a bad climb, and
now they were enjoying one of
the most beautiful sights in the mountains. The sun, playing about
the peaks, painted them with a fantastic mauve and purple. The roar of the water was pleasant to
their ears. A faint cooling spray
came up at intervals to revive
them from blisful lethargy.

Jaime smoked and was silent,
contemplating the grandeur all
about. Ann leaned back on the rock, and watched the clouds
chasing one another in the sky.

"You see how marvelous it is up
here?" This is a real
vacation spot.

"At least it's better than that
dark little hole—the betting room.
It was too much work getting here!" Jaime smiled lazily down at her.

She sat up suddenly. "Jaime,
why don't you do something? People love you. They are snared by
your charm, but they want to slap
your hands and say, 'Get some ambition!'"

Jaime laughed at her. "I think
you like me—just as I am," he said,
and moved to kiss her.

"Conceited!" she answered, evad-
ing him.

He looked genuinely hurt, and
at very still hugging his knee up
to his chin. "All right, Jaime, will
be a good boy."

He looked up at the trail which
led toward the top of the giant peak
and said, "Shall we climb on?"

"Do you want to?" Her eyes were again.

"If you want to," he said with the
most beautiful radiant of the deep,
extreme courtesy. "I think I could
live on this moon in captivity."

CHAPTER VII

WHEN Ann came down to breakfast she felt that some of the guests at the resort hotel eyed her askance. She was sure she knew what they were thinking; she was the girl who was running around with that wild gaudy Jaime Laird, who lived across the lake at the Moulin. Flying high! They all knew who Ann was, what she did
in the city, and what she is now.
She was wearing climbing boots.
The porch attendants took up their
positions and waited for something
to happen. One or two genial old
fellows dropped a smile or two in
their knitting when Jaime's long
sleeved came rustling around the
lake, to sit in a whiff of dirt before the Glenwood Inn.

Ann went down to meet him and
they drove away on the Cascade
road toward the Mayor trail. Jaime
seemed changed. Ann thought—or
perhaps she imagined it—his hair
had a little more color this
morning. Perhaps it was the result of the crisp mountain air.
They were content to say nothing,
to throw back their heads in the
breeze.

"Is this a very steep mountain?"
Jaime asked.
"It's the highest in the Adiron-
dacks," she said firmly.
Jaime pretended to faint, and she
had to catch the wheel to keep
them from swerving off the road.
"You juveniles are just laughing."
"You perpetual clown."
He faced her. "Do you like me?"
"I'm afraid I do."

The climb they were attempting
wasn't arduous. They were going
only part of the way up the mountain. At first the trail was no more than a leisurely uphill walk. At
intervals Jaime stopped and pointed out flora beside the path. Once
they stopped to watch tiny birds
in the grass.

This experience was something
entirely new to him, and he thrilled
to it like a small boy. His face was
flushed when they came to the
roaring cataract which emptied one
of the high mountain lakes into
the Indians Lake Tarn-in-the-Clouds.

He leapt out of the big bulldozer
in the very centre of the raging
food, and waited for her to fol-
low. Ann jumped, and he caught
her in his arms. They were both
laughing hilariously when they sat
down on the rock-island to catch
their wind.

It hadn't been a bad climb, and
now they were enjoying one of
the most beautiful sights in the
mountains. The sun, playing about
the peaks, painted them with a fantastic mauve and purple. The
roar of the water was pleasant to
their ears. A faint cooling spray
came up at intervals to revive
them from blisful lethargy.

Jaime smoked and was silent,
contemplating the grandeur all
about. Ann leaned back on the
rock, and watched the clouds
chasing one another in the
sky.

"You see how marvelous it is up
here?" This is a real
vacation spot.

"At least it's better than that
dark little hole—the betting room.
It was too much work getting
here!" Jaime smiled lazily down at
her.

She sat up suddenly. "Jaime,
why don't you do something? People love you. They are snared by
your charm, but they want to slap
your hands and say, 'Get some ambition!'"

Jaime laughed at her. "I think
you like me—just as I am," he said,
and moved to kiss her.

"Conceited!" she answered, evad-
ing him.

He looked genuinely hurt, and
at very still hugging his knee up
to his chin. "All right, Jaime, will
be a good boy."

He looked up at the trail which
led toward the top of the giant peak
and said, "Shall we climb on?"

"Do you want to?" Her eyes were
again.

"If you want to," he said with the
most beautiful radiant of the deep,
extreme courtesy. "I think I could
live on this moon in captivity."

"It's this a very steep mountain?"
Jaime asked.
